

Research:

Ebola: Lessons for development

Overview

Researchers >

Outputs >

Partners >

This is an initiative in which it is hoped the development community can start to ask itself deep and serious questions about how the current development model has contributed to shaping the magnitude of today's crisis – and, importantly, point to what needs to change to realise a more resilient global future.

The initiative will be launched at a high-level meeting of key policymakers, NGOs and researchers involved in the Ebola crisis. In a set of nine briefing papers launching the initiative, IDS researchers argue that there is an urgent need to look beyond the immediate, on-the-ground concerns of disease control and containment to consider the bigger and broader questions about international development.

Project Dates:

February 2015 - Ongoing

Project Status:

Open

Funder:

UKaid

Research Themes /

Programmes:

Aid
Conflict, Violence and Security
Ebola
Environment
Gender
Health
Influencing Policies to Support the Empowerment of Women and Girls
Politics and Power
Urbanisation
Zoonoses

Key contacts

Amber Huff

Contact details

Leah Plati

