

Overcoming structural violence – the refugee health team

This is Sarah, a young doctor in training with prior experience working in internal medicine and pediatrics. Today is her first day in her rotation in the refugee health team, a model project linked with the department of tropical medicine of an urban German hospital.

This is what the schedule for her first week looks like.

→ first session