Can I procure essential items through other channels?

While stakeholders may choose to source and procure essential items listed in the online catalogue from other sources, in large volumes this practice creates competing supply chains and undermines the aims of the COVID-19 Supply Chain System.

Countries who do procure essential items through other methods are required to report such procurement activities to the COVID-19 Supply Portal Control Tower so that reporting can be adjusted accordingly.

How do I know how much I will have to pay for supplies?

When requesting supplies, users are provided with an estimated cost. This estimated cost is subject to change and is provided for planning purposes only. Order specifics, including quantity, price and handling fee (if applicable) will be communicated to requestors for confirmation prior to finalizing an order.

Will agency handling fees be applied? How much will these be?

Handling fees may vary depending on the procuring organization. Order specifics, including quantity, price and handling fee will be communicated to requestors for confirmation prior to finalizing an order.

Is there a time limit how long I have to accept a final offer?

The Control Tower will reach out in cases where a response has been pending for longer than expected in order to help facilitate the process.

Allocation

How are supplies allocated?

Allocations of essential supplies are agreed by the major purchasers and based on country needs, data on national absorption capacity and gap in unmet supply need. The Control Tower manages execution of allocation against the principles and strategy provided by the Task Force / Consortia.

Will supply requests be reviewed by the Control Tower against forecasts?

Yes, all requests will be reviewed in line with available forecast demand modeling.
