Maps

Our global and regional maps provide a visual depiction of the locations around the world where different nutrition-related public health policies have been passed or implemented. The sugary drink tax map includes brief descriptions of over 50 taxes now passed globally, and the front-of-package labeling map provides images of the different label types used worldwide and includes brief policy descriptions for mandatory label policies.

We update these maps regularly to reflect passage of new policies or updates to older regulations. Please contact us if you have questions or contributions regarding a particular map or if you would like to use one or more of our maps in your work.
